The Problem

- Knowing what people think is impossible unless they share it with you
- Discovering how these views differ among people is hard because of
 - Polarized views cause people to avoid conversations
 - Cancel culture

Why now?

- Lack of transparency into people's opinions
- Polarized political/social landscape
- Lots of perspectives passed down from centralized entities
- Cancel culture prevents people from saying what they think
- We understand that all voices deserve to be heard
- Views on issues tend to be generalized

In a perfect world...

- Questions on a myriad of issues are available for answering
- See how people answered questions with respect to
 - Age, race, location, political affiliation, sexual orientation, education, etc.
- Understand where you stand in relation to everyone else in the world.

By understanding where and how our views differ, we can begin to understand why our views differ.
